

Vacancy Young Agile Consortium

What do we build?

The Young Agile Consortium is a community for young professionals and students and therefore focuses on an age category up to approximately 35 years. In order to exchange knowledge, we bring young professionals together in (online) conferences, keynotes, workshops, brainstorm session and other cool activities. To build such events and the young community, a team of enthusiastic and passionate board members is needed. Two board members have already stood up to found the community. Are you as high flyer as us? Then we are looking for you!

What are we looking for?

We are looking for board members who, in addition to general board duties, are eager to focus on the following responsibilities.

- Organizing workshops, events and keynotes for young professionals and students
- Setting up partnerships with Young Professional networks, colleges and universities
- Recruiting new members
- Maintaining the company network
- Acquisition of sponsors

What are the job requirements?

- Demonstrable affinity with the purpose and activities of the Agile Consortium
- Preferably not older than 35, as it is a young professional network
- Has a flexible agenda, sufficient time and the appropriate means of communication to properly fulfil the board position
- Access to a relevant network is an advantage

What's in it for me?

In a board position you have direct contact with a variety of agile experts. This broadens and strengthens your agile network and you learn where the field of agile will move to in the coming years. This inspiration helps you in your personal development and ensures that you can let your career move with the latest developments. By being part of the board you have a nice distraction from your daily work and good sparring partners for life. So help us build your own future and that of agile!

Which competences are required?

- Vision: the ability to put matters in a broader context and to propagate them; conceptual and policy thinking with the long term in mind.
- Network-oriented: the ability to work in teams and build, maintain and utilize relationships that may be important for now or in the future to achieve work-related goals.
- Flexibility: the ability to adapt activities, work style, time and place to changing circumstances.
- Negotiation: the ability to achieve a good result without harming relationships, when there are conflicting interests.

The time commitment is on average 2 hours per week. Meetings mainly take place on working days outside working hours.
